

JOURNALISM & DIGITAL MEDIA

As a student studying one of our journalism and digital media courses you will be part of the Westminster School of Media, Arts and Design based at our recently refurbished Harrow Campus. It offers one of the most varied arts and media portfolios in Europe, and you will work alongside students from film, photography, music, fashion, and art and design, in a unique hothouse of creative opportunity. Our journalism, publishing and PR courses are rated among the best in the UK and in London (The Guardian University Rankings 2017), and the Department is one of only three British communication and media departments in the world's top 30 (QS rankings 2016).

Teaching and learning

Our reputation for professional and practice-based education is matched by our distinguished record in academic teaching and scholarly research. Our students are taught by internationally renowned academics from Westminster's world-leading Communication and Media Research Institute (CAMRI), as well as by industry professionals and practitioners with a range of backgrounds.

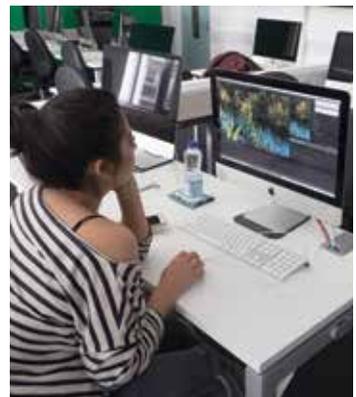

Employability

Our courses equip you with the skills to succeed in both traditional and new media and communications organisations, newsrooms, print journalism, public relations, radio, broadcast media, public sector and NGOs, and much more. All our degrees have strong industry links, and you are encouraged to do as many work placements as possible; for some of our courses work experience is a degree requirement. Recent graduates are working at the BBC (Radio One, Radio Four, 5Live), CNN, The Week, Music Week, Sky Sports News, Metro Newspapers, The Huffington Post, BuzzFeed, Google News Labs, The Guardian, Cosmopolitan, TalkSport, Kiss, Somethin' Else, Heart, Radio X and Free Radio.

This is a communications degree for the 21st century. It is not tied to a particular media industry, but instead recognises the ongoing practical and conceptual convergence between technologies, industries and ways of communicating.

Our graduates are skilled researchers, critical thinkers and creative communicators. You will understand the production, distribution and uses of networked digital media, and will have informed critical perspectives on the social and cultural significance of mediated communication. You will develop high-level skills through academic study, through producing websites to a professional standard, and through devising and conducting an original research project. Many of our graduates build successful careers in the creative industries, but the degree will also enable you to work across a broader range of sectors and professions.

This course places equal emphasis on mastering practical skills and developing your academic potential. This combination has helped secure our position among the best universities in the UK for PR and advertising (The Guardian University Rankings 2017). You receive intensive preparation for professional life from practitioners, and will understand the role of PR and advertising in society and their relationship with, and content for, all forms of the media – earned, owned and bought. You will also develop a critical understanding of the changing creative industries, their products and their audiences.

The School's media research interests mean you study broader issues alongside students of journalism, digital media and radio. We also have strong links with the PR and advertising industries, inviting in a range of guest speakers, and organising events and visits. Work experience is readily available given London's leading position in the world of PR and advertising.
